2004, Apr. – 2004, Jul. Project Assistant and CSR researcher, Nordic Partnership Secretariat, Copenhagen (closed)

Has conducted a review of the Nordic governments' follow-up on the agenda for Sustainable Consumption and Production agreed at the UN World Summit on Sustainable Development in Johannesburg, 2002. Has in this connection interviewed 12 representatives from Nordic ministries and the Nordic Council of Ministers. Has participated in organising the seminar: "Sustainable Production and Consumption – where is the current agenda, and how can it be made attractive to business? A high-level multi-stakeholder workshop.", June 2004.

The Nordic Partnership (closed) was an NGO-business network founded in 2001 by the World Wide Fund for Nature (WWF), Danish media centre Monday Morning, and key corporate players in the Nordic region (e.g. Volvo, Novo Nordisk, Procter & Gamble Nordic), UN organisations (e.g. UNIDO) and Nordic NGOs (e.g. Amnesty and Save the Children). The network members collaborated to find new ways of making sustainable initiatives more attractive and rewarding to business. The aim was to provide fresh perspectives, challenges, and recommendations to the 'rules of the game' that relate to sustainable development.

2002, Oct. – 2003, Oct. Research Assistant and Pre-Doc, Copenhagen Business School

Center for Corporate Values and Responsibility, Department of Intercultural Communication and Management. Renamed to: CBS Sustainability, Department of Management, Society and Communication. https://www.cbs.dk/en/research/departments-and-centres/department-of-management-society-and-communication/cbs-sustainability

The purpose of the employment was to make a Ph.D. proposal about Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) and apply for funding for it (no funding obtained). The title of the proposal was: Transferring Corporate Social Responsibility to Companies in the Developing Countries – the Case of Co-Operating Danish and Indian Businesses. The aim of the planned dissertation was to investigate how and to what extent CSR was being diffused from Danish to Indian companies, and to examine the development potential of diffused CSR. A goal was also to examine specific corporate legitimacy crises in an Indian context. The purpose was to come to a better understanding of how these "moral panics" worked. This part of the study would have focused on the communication between companies, local media, and the public. Finally, it would have been discussed whether and how CSR-issues should have been integrated more explicitly into Denmark's development policy so that business promotion could have addressed Danida's cross-cutting issues more efficiently.

The Industrialization Fund for the Developing Countries (IFU) was contacted in order to identify potential case-studies. Cheminova, Roulunds, and FLSmidth were willing to consider being a part of the case-study if the necessary funding for the dissertation was obtained.

Furthermore, the job consisted of fundraising, planning study groups, and arranging research seminars, workshops, and conferences. Especially the European Academy of Business in Society's conference: "Partnerships for Learning and Innovation on the Role of Business in Society", Sept. 2003. In this context, he assisted in developing and distributing conference material, designing PowerPoint presentations, and taking minutes from conference workshops.

1997, Oct. – 2001, Feb. Assistant Desk Officer, Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Denmark
Department for United Nations Development Assistance.

Administration of foreign aid to UN's development organisations (e.g. ILO, UNESCO, UNAIDS, and WHO) and to several international and Danish NGOs (e.g. Fagbevægelsens Ulandssekretariat). Duties included making budgets, handling disbursements, doing accounting, writing policy papers, and monitoring the organisations. https://um.dk/en 2004, Feb. – Apr. International Project Management, Carl Bro International, Glostrup. (renamed to Sweco).
